LID'LL BE ON NEW YEAR EVE, THAT'S FINAL

Nist Says There Will Be No Suspension of Ordinance for Celebrants.

CHIEF TO ENFORCE LAW

Plan to Lift Ban for Two and Half Hours Monday Morning
Tabled After Conference.

There will be no tipping—officially—at Mansfield bars for New Year celebrants who expect to greet 1940 with the cup that cheers, Service-Safety Director
Earl A. Nist announced today.

Nist said there would be no suspension of the city ordinance prohibiting the sale of liquor from midnight Saturday until 6 a. m. Monday.

This was backed up by a statement from Police Chief Meade K.
Bates that the ordinance would be "enforced."

Confer With Locke.

The announcement was made this morning after Nist had conferred with Mayor-elect William J. Locke concerning suspension of the ordinance for a two and a half hour period Monday morning to conform with the state law which allows night clubs to open at midnight.

"The city has an ordinance set up by council governing the sale of intoxicants. Council has taken no action on suspension and therefore the regulations will govern the sale of liquor on New Year eve the same as any other time," the director said.

He said he expected the police department to enforce the law, "but it is up to the bars as to whether they will or not."

The chief knows what to do,"

Nist said yesterday that he would ask Locke to consider suspension of the ordinance from midnight Sunday until 6 a. m.
Monday but declined comment on the outcome of the conference.

Locke also declined to discuss the matter, stating that he could make no official statement regarding the situation until he officially became the city's mayor.

Traffic Victim Struck Near Spot Where Mate Died

The fatal injury of Mrs. Minnie Hershey, 65, who was run over by a car in front of her home yesterday on route 42 south of the city, marked the second tragedy that has struck her family at the same spot, it was revealed today.

Mrs. Hershey's husband, the late Wilbert Hershey, dropped dead about two years ago almost at the same place, authorities said. He was struck with a heavy truck.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hershey, who died in General hospital after being run over by a car driven by G. W. Gearhart of Lexington, will be held at 1 p. m.
Saturday at the Upper funeral home. Rev. C. Kern, pastor of the South Main Street Evangelical church, will officiate. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

Mrs. Hershey was born near Mansfield Oct. 9, 1874, and lived her entire life in this community.
She is survived by two sons, Dee Hershey of Woodville road and Robert Hershey of Lexington; a daughter, Mrs. Donna Shafer of Lexington; a half-brother, R. R.
Kennedy of Mansfield; nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.—Friends of Benjamin Winters, 24, were questioned today by police who sought an explanation for the disappearance of the Ohio State university medical freshman from his mother's home here Tuesday, four days before his contemplated marriage.

While spending the Christmas holidays here, he told relatives he was going to "take a walk" and they have not seen him since.

ALBERT D. CADDELL

CADDELL ASKED TO QUIT POST

Resignation of Mansfield Man
From Industrial Commission Position Requested.

The resignation of Albert D.
Caddell, former secretary of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, from his position as secretary of the state industrial commission at Columbus has been requested, Associated Press dispatches said
this afternoon.

Caddell has been secretary of the commission for the past five and a half years. He resigned his duties in Columbus in May, 1934, shortly after leaving the Mansfield C. of C. position.

Announcement that his resignation had been requested was made by Don C. Power, executive secretary to Governor John W.
Bricker. It was interpreted as the initial step toward reorganization of the division, which has been frequently under fire in the past few years.

Caddell is listed on the state roster as a Republican, but has served under two Democratic administrations in the past five years.

Hoover Reports Third Check
Cabled to Finland.

NEW YORK, O.—Former President Herbert Hoover announced today through the Finnish relief fund which he heads that a third $100,000 donation had been cabled to Finland.

Mr. Hoover, now in Chicago, said contributions were coming in at national headquarters here with unrelenting volume.

No goal has been set for the fund, Mr. Hoover said, "because it is impossible to estimate the needs in an emergency of this kind."

"Our job," he said, "is to get money to Finland as fast as possible, if we hope to prevent greater suffering among the civilian non-combatants."

17-Year-Old Slayer of Sweetheart Enters Prison for Life.

CHARLES CITY, Ia.—Jury
Warner Blewett, 17, began a life term at hard labor at the state prison today for the murder of his sweetheart, Dorothy Carter, 14.

He pleaded guilty and was sentenced by County Judge M. H.
Kemper.

He was president of the senior class and the girl was president of the freshman class at the Colwell high school. He shot and clubbed her to death Dec. 11 on a country road after they had attended a movie.

Russia Sends Female Battalion to Help Fight Finns, Report.

HELSINKI, O.—Russian women may take a hand in the fighting on Finland's bleak, sub-zero polar front, where thousands of Soviet soldiers have perished, it was reported today.

Advices reaching Helsinki said a battalion of 800 Russian women has arrived at Murmansk, presumably for some sort of service in the Finnish campaign.

Roosevelt Indicates He Will Leave Program Entirely
Up to Solons.

(By International News Service)
WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt disclosed at his press conference today that he would ask congress to enact new taxes when he delivers his message on the state of the union next Wednesday.
The president said he would suggest a number of taxation plans to congress and then leave it up to the lawmakers what plan should be adopted.

He will not attempt to influence congress once he has made his recommendations, the president added.

Mr. Roosevelt made it clear, however, that new taxes were needed to raise revenue.

He went on to explain that the total of the new budget, which he probably will make known soon after he delivers his message to congress, was a good figure.

Because of that, he suggested he would recommend a number of forms of taxes for raising money. Then he will sit by and not try to influence the legislators as to which forms they should adopt.

This puts the question of new taxes squarely up to congress in a presidential election year.

The president said he would suggest at least half a dozen types of taxes.

Meanwhile, from other sources,
it was believed that beside tax recommendations, the president would place only a small legislative program before the session convening next Wednesday. However, a canvass disclosed that many highly controversial and important measures will confront congress at the outset.

Ball Bill Up.

Outstanding among bills on which legislation was not completed in the last session, is the mittees.

1 KILLED, TWO HURT IN ROW

Father Kills Self After Shooting
Wife, Daughter, 12.

NEW YORK.—A mother and daughter were battling for their lives today as the result of a bitter family quarrel that ended in gunfire from the father, who committed suicide.

The victims were Mrs. Elizabeth Solovioff, 38, and her daughter, Vivian Ruth, 12. The dead man was Aaron Solovioff, 41, a violinist and Jewish cantor. Solovioff resisted to gunfire after hours of persuasion failed to effect a reconciliation with his estranged family.

Another daughter escaped two bullets intended for her and fled to a neighbor's apartment.

Hunt Missing Councilman-Elect Who Abandoned His Auto Here

Mansfield police today were

Westinghouse Workers Reject Employer Union, 1,445 to 943

By a vote of 1,445 to 943, employees of the Mansfield Westinghouse plant yesterday rejected the Westinghouse Employees' association, Inc., as a collective bargaining agent at an election conducted by the National Labor Relations board.

There were 2,422 ballots cast by employees in the election at the Westinghouse plant with the margin of defeat for the independent association amounting to 502 votes. NLRB representatives said 2,700 employees at the plant were eligible to vote. Two ballots were voided and 12 were blank, indicating that about 300 failed to cast ballots.

Employees could choose between representation by the non-affiliated Westinghouse Employees' association or no representation.
The CIO-affiliated United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers withdrew from the election.
Ordered by the labor board at the request of the Employees' association, the election was in charge of Andrew Meyer, Louis

WASHINGTON.—President
Roosevelt today informally invited the heads of all church organizations not associated with the federal council of Churches of Christ in America to come in and confer with him on his most recent move for peace in Europe.

The president pointed out that he did not believe the Southern

Executive Committee Turns

LOCKE DELAYS APPOINTING

Warrack Seen as Waterworks Superintendent, Hebel as Street Boss.

Fourteen recommendations for appointment to city posts were turned over to Mayor-elect William J. Locke today by the Republican executive committee.

Decided upon at a meeting last night, the recommendations include candidates for department heads, a city hall telephone operator, the new mayor's secretary, and men to fill vacancies on the various municipal boards.

Recommendations made by the committee include the names of James Warrack, Lester Linham,
Charles Hebel, S. C. LeMunyon,
Lloyd Koehenderfer, Gladys
Lash, Willean Treisch, Atty.
James V. Will, Dean Roberts,
W. B. Crider, Tom Woodard, J. C. Edwards, P. M. Elliot and Atty. H. H. Schettler.

The committee also recommended Miss Norma Johnston, clerk at Hedges school, for the position of assistant in the aid for the aged office.

Locke, who attended the meeting last night, said this morning that he would not announce his appointments before Sunday because he had a "few details" yet to work out concerning some of the jobs.

Warrack Mentioned Before.

Political observers, however,
saw in the recommendation of Warrack, the man most likely to get the superintendency of the waterworks since his name had been mentioned for the job before the death this week of Arthur McMullen who was slated for the position.

Warrack, a former Ohio Brass company employee, now working for the state highway department, held the position of sidewalk inspector during the administration of former Mayor E. A. McFarland.

Another McFarland appointee, former superintendent of streets, Hebel, is expected to again take over that position, while LeMunsuperintendent of sewer maintenance.

Bell, Ex-Budget Director, to Be

WASHINGTON.—President
Roosevelt announced today that he would name Daniel W. Bell, former acting budget director, to the vacant post of undersecretary of the treasury.

At a press conference Mr.
Roosevelt said he would submit the nomination to the senate when congress assembles.

Bell now is an assistant to the secretary of the treasury. He has been reluctant heretofore to give up his civil service status to take an appointive job, but President Roosevelt said today he believed Bell could stay out of civil service a certain number of years and then go back without losing civil service status.

Battleship Hit As Sub Attacks Near Scotland

London Admits U-Boat Victory, Says 3

Details Kept Secret; Nazis Claim Vessel One In $15,000,000 Class.

(By International News Service)
BERLIN—Another major naval victory, the tor-pedoing of a 31,000-ton British battleship by a German submarine, was announced by Berlin authorities today.

Officials stated that a Nazi U-boat torpedoed a battleship of the Queen Elizabeth class yesterday west of Scotland.

An announcement by the German general headquarters gave no further details.

It was believed the U-boat merely dispatched a brief code message regarding the torpedoing and did not state whether the battleship sank.

The British vessel claimed to have been the victim of the submarine attack was not precisely identified.

Aside from the Queen Elizabeth, other vessels in that class include the Warspite, Valiant, Barham and Malaya.
These ships all carry a normal complement of between 1,124 and 1,184 men and are all fitted as flagships.

They were constructed between 1913 and 1915.

(Vessels of the Queen Elizabeth class each cost nearly $15,000,000 to build. They are equipped with eight 15-inch guns, two 8-inch guns and various smaller armament, in addition to torpedo tubes, and are heavily armored.)

MUTINY: Discontented Reds Mow Down Own Troops, Report

(By International News Service)
COPENHAGEN—Widespread mutinies among Soviet Russian troops on Finland's frigid northern fronts were reported today in press dispatches reaching Copenhagen.

One Danish correspondent reported that he personally witnessed Russian planes diving over the Russian lines on the Salla front machine gunning the Soviet troops.

He reported that he also heard violent machine gun fire on the Russian side of no man's land, behind the Soviet lines.

This account, appearing in the newspaper Berlingske Tidende, added that the Russians used their own tanks to drive Red army infantrymen to attack the Finnish positions.

That the Soviet difficulties with their own troops were not confined to the far north was indicated by reports from Helsinki, which said that "crack" Russian secret police troops had been rushed to the Karelian isthmus in the south to "stiffen" the Soviet attacks against Finland's sturdy Manner-heim line, where hundreds of Red infantrymen have been mowed down by Finnish guns.

Still other reports said that a detachment of Russian soldiers came lost in the frozen wilds last night and were fired on by mistake by their comrades.

General Kurt Wallenius, commander of the Finnish army in the north, made a purported diary of a Red army officer revealing discontent with the Finnish campaign even among Soviet officers.

The diary, said to have been

MOBILIZE: Netherlands Calls All Men From 18 and 59 for Duty

(By United Press)
AMSTERDAM—An official decree was promulgated today authorizing the mobilization of every man in the Netherlands between the ages of 18 and 59 years for emergency work at any time and in any manner.

The penalty for evasion of a draft is a maximum of three months imprisonment.

By the decree, the Netherlands testified anew to its historic determination to resist any invader at whatever cost. Under existing law, every man in the country be-liable for active military service.

The national defenses have been prepared for an immediate resis-

Probe Sabotage In Burning of Patterns for U. S. Ships

INVESTIGATORS SIFT RUINS OF CASTING PLANT

Foundry, Engaged in Making Special Equipment for Destroyers, Burned.

(By United Press)
REVERE, Mass.—Fire early today destroyed valuable patterns and casting designs for several destroyers now under construction. Investigators suggested saboteurs may have started it.

The fire spread quickly through the plant of the Revere Brass foundry which is turning out special castings for destroyers being built at the Bath, Me., Iron Works, to the exclusion of all work.

Fire Chief Thomas J. McCarrick asked state police and the state fire marshal to investigate the possibility of sabotage because of the rapidity with which the fire spread through the 1½ story frame structure.

A curtain of water sprayed between the plant and numerous oil tanks beside the Chelsea river, nearest of which were 200 feet from the flaming building, prevented a conflagration. Working in freezing weather and dense clouds of smoke, firemen quickly quelled the blaze, but not before the patterns and valuable machinery were destroyed.

McCarrick said damage to the building was about $15,000. He was unable to estimate the amount of damage to machinery and the patterns and designs.

Investigators said the fire started in a large oven used for drying casting cores. Coal is fed into the oven through doors from outside the building, though the cores are inserted from the inside.

The possibility that inflammables or explosives might have been inserted from the outside was suggested by the firemen, though Night Watchman Edward J. O'Brien said he was only 20 feet from the oven when it burst into flames following an explosion.

Track Tampering
Led to 24 Wreck
Deaths, U. S. Says

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce commission reported today that "malicious tampering" with the tracks caused the derailment of the Southern Pacific's streamline train "City of San Francisco" near Harney, Nev., August 12. Nine passengers and 15 dining car employees were killed in the crash.

In addition, 99 passengers and 14 employees were injured.

The commission said that the evidence showed the train was not moving in excess of the maximum authorized speed of 60 miles an hour when it was derailed.

"The train was riding smoothly and there was no indication of defective equipment," the commission said.

"Subsequent examination of the track disclosed that on the south rail the angle bars had been removed from a joint located 169.5 feet east of bridge (No. 518) 54 and the angle bars, bolts, nuts and tight-lock washers were lying adjacent to the disconnected rail. Apparently a wrench had been used to remove the nuts, as none of the bolts was cut or broken."

Up to today they were not sure if a recent injury had robbed Nick of a chance to make the trip. But proof that the Mansfield boy is in Pasadena arrived in the form of newspaper pictures, one showing Nick and his teammates stepping off the train on the coast in front of a cheering crowd and the other of the Ex-Tyger and his teammates inspecting the stadium.

People who received the Karl Horn Christmas cards this year chuckled at the cartoonist's likeness of himself. Many keep these annual cartoon greetings from Horn and one Mansfield woman has seven of them. This year he sent approximately 450 greetings but few of the recipients realize the amount of work that goes into each card. While they are printed from a master cartoon, each card is hand-drawn by Horn, and he spends weeks working on them.

Can anyone beat the Christmas cookie record of Mrs. C. G. Erdemberger, 148 Western avenue? When the last "batch" was out of the oven, she had more than 2,000 of them in a dozen varieties. Of course they went into gift boxes. The nearest approach to the record so far, was made by Mrs. W. A. Springer, Edgewood road, who baked 1,800 this year.

NAZIS READY TO MAKE BUTTER FROM COAL, SCIENTIST CLAIMS

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS—Germany is prepared to make edible fats from coal and shale. Quite literally, in a pinch she can make her butter from coal.

Details of this discovery were given to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today by a recently arrived German expatriate, Dr. Wally Lange, of the basic science research laboratory, University of Cincinnati.

Dr. Lange was an assistant professor in the University of Berlin, and his figures covered developments up to midsummer, shortly before start of the war.

Fats and copper are the two materials here said Germany was most likely to run short of in war. This month there have been news reports that Germany was progressing on the fat problem with new synthetic chemistry.

The coal fats, Dr. Lang said, are made by blowing steam through burning coal to produce carbon monoxide and hydrogen. This poisonous gas is the starting substance which, with subsequent chemical treatments, becomes first industrial fat, and then edible fat.

Shale, of which Germany has a larger supply than of coal, is another starting material for butter substitutes. The shale is first converted into oil.

Chemists who heard Dr. Lange's paper said it appears that anything which produces a lot of carbon monoxide is good for making edible fats.

Germany's immediate purpose, Dr. Lange said, is to make industrial fats, mostly soaps, which need not be so pure as the edible kind, in order to save her natural fats for food.

GETS CONTRACT FOR 6 HYDRANTS

Pennsylvania Firm Low on Fire Department Equipment.

The Darling Valve and Manufacturing company, Williamsport, Pa., was awarded the contract today by the city board of control for delivery of six new fire hydrants on the firm's low bid of $432.40.

The Darling company's bid was $94 lower than the $526.40 submitted by the Benssaler Valve company, Pittsburgh, Pa., only other bidder on the equipment.

Specifications call for delivery of two five-inch and four four-inch hydrants with two six-inch and four four-inch gates valves.

JOBLESS MINERS DISPATCH PLEA TO ROOSEVELT

Wire Sent President After Governor Says County Can Get Needed Funds.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A request that federal soup kitchens be sent to feed the needy in Athens county, Ohio, President Roosevelt said today, will be turned over to Colonel F. C. Harrington, WPA director, for investigation.

(By International News Service)
COLUMBUS—Governor Bricker today had apparently "washed his hands" of the Athens county relief problem.

He declared yesterday after a group of coal miners of the county telegraphed President Roosevelt for aid that "anything else is up to the county."

Senator H. T. Phillips, (R-Athens) and Floyd Mees (R-Pomeroy) conferred with Bricker yesterday and it was reported they told him the situation could be solved locally.

County officials have declared that a "relief crisis" exists in Athens county and that no more funds are available for relief orders. Food orders for the 6,252 persons on relief there were stopped Dec. 15.

State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood, who heads the state poor relief set-up was to confer with Governor Bricker today to determine definitely whether the county can use $22,000 in excess utilities tax collections for relief purposes. County officials have insisted they do not have the money.

Plea to Roosevelt.

The plea to President Roosevelt was forwarded to Washington by a group of coal miners of the Plains, a mining community near Athens. The telegram read:

"Relief situation in Athens county acute. Clients in dire need of food, fuel and clothing. Governor Bricker as usual says there are plenty of funds. Commissioners say county relief set-up broke."

Two state examiners, Ralph Gust and Ed Knaub, meanwhile were understood to have reported methods by which Athens county could obtain additional relief funds.

One would be to sell approximately $20,000 in delinquent tax bonds of which about $4,500 could be used for relief. Matched by state funds, this would make a total of $9,000 available.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Daily Worker Puts Itself
In Same Class With Those
It Hates By Firing Critic

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—An interesting situation has developed in the relations between the Daily Workers, the official organ of the Communist party, and the American Newspaper guild. The Worker has either fired its motion picture editor, Mr. Howard Rushmore, or compelled him to resign because he refused to condemn utterly the movie, Gone With the Wind. According to his story, he quit, and according to the Worker's own announcement, he was canned.

Either way, Rushmore is a victim of a type of boss-persecution from which the Guild purports to protect its members without discrimination, and the case on any other paper would call for his reinstatement or for a strike, a picket line and a boycott of all wares and activities advertised in the Worker, including Communist meetings and literature. It is even a case for war on the Communist party itself, as publisher of the paper.

The dispute narrows down to the fact that Rushmore has been deprived of his job because his political beliefs conflict with those of his employer.

He has other grievances, however, which, although trivial by comparison with this great issue of freedom and dignity, nevertheless must be pressed and redressed, unless, by failure to do so, the newspaper Guild create a public impression that the Communist party enjoys special favor.

If any other New York newspaper were to fire a journalist because his beliefs conflicted with those of the boss, and the facts were openly admitted, as in this instance, there would be no argument about the Guild's course. A demand for reinstatement would be made immediately, and if the man were not restored to duty the boss would be cited to the labor board of coercion and intimidation. The advertisers would be denounced as enemies of labor, even though they had union contracts covering all their relations with their own employees.

The present situation will present a trying problem to those officials and diligent unioners in the Guild who are either avowed or undercover members of the Communist party. If these influential directors of Guild activity, some of whom are named among its officers, now move to punish the worker, they will be guilty of infidelity to Josef Stalin and subject to expulsion from the party.

But if they don't move to punish the Worker and the party as enemies of labor, they court expulsion from the Guild as allies of an oppressive employer against a worker.

The Worker's announcement left no doubt that Rushmore had been "released" because of his beliefs. It did not say that he was drunk, tardy, inefficient or negligent. It said he had placed himself definitely in the camp of reaction as an enemy of the working class.

But the Worker and the Communist party were not the working class. They were the employer and a remarkably bad employer at that, for Rushmore's salary, when he got it, was only $25 a week. And now he reports that he has not received even that for several months.

The Guild would never permit a capitalist American publisher to pay a movie reviewer as little as $25 a week in New York, and it has taken a firm stand against the old custom of permitting cubs to work for nothing but experience. This custom has been abandoned by most publishers, the Daily Worker, incidentally, being one of the few exceptions.

Furthermore, the Guild, for the self-respect of its members, insists that no man shall be required to sign his name to writings which violate his own beliefs, and this would appear to be another important particular in the grievance against the Worker and the Communist party. Rushmore, working for nothing, lost his job because he refused to write even a single line which violated his own public which, though limited, nevertheless, knew him to be the Worker's critic.

The Guild never accepts a plea of poverty by a publisher, but in this case no such excuse can be offered for sweating a fully qualified journalist at $25 a week and failing to pay him even that. Testimony before the Dies committee showed that this employer has vast amounts of money at its disposal.

Survey Shows Reduction In Grid Fatalities.
LOS ANGELES, Cal.—(AP)—Substantial strides in the reduction of football fatalities were reported today by Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood of Purdue university in the ninth annual survey presented to the National Collegiate Athletic association. The report for the past season disclosed it had been the safest since the surveys were started in 1931. Twelve deaths were ascribed directly to football.

Famous Celtics Play at High School Tonight

Record Crowd Looms

New York Quintet to Tangle With City League Stars; Game Called at 9:15 P. M.

A FEW of basketball's "Who's Who" will appear on the Mansfield high school court at 9:15 p. m. today when the Original New York Celtics oppose the City Class A league All-Stars in an exhibition game.

Presenting some of the game's greatest stars, the Celtics will be heavily-favored to outpoint the Mansfield quintet tonight.

However, the game should attract the largest crowd to witness an affair at the Tyler lair this year as Mansfield fans undoubtedly will want to see if all they have heard about the famous Celtics is true.

Although the Celtics have several of their original members in the lineup, the team continues to rate as one of the toughest, if not the toughest, pro club on tour.

The New York cagers offer to meet any team on any court, and that they have more than held their own with the best competition in the country is shown by their record, which includes something like 338 victories in their 358 games.

Outstanding members of the club are Dutch Rehnert, Davey Banks, Nat Hickey and Rusty Saunders.

Dehnert, originator of the pivot play, was a member of the Celtics since their existence, along with the immortal Nat Holman. Banks is the team's comedian. He is a spectacular long-shot artist and has led the Celtics in scoring for the last 12 years.

A great floor man, Hickey is the leading Celtic scorer at present. Originally with the Holly Majors of New York, Hickey joined the Celtics in 1931 when the American pro league disbanded.

Saunders also joined the Celtics in 1931. He formerly played with the Fort Wayne Hoosiers and is a skilled ball handler. The other members of the squad are Moe Duballer of New York U., George Chestnut of Maryland U., and Tony Kappen of Manhattan college.

The Mansfield squad includes Howard Poole and George Hummel of the Westinghouse Electric, Noel Morgan and Fred Lewis of Shelley's Chocolates, Kenny Lockhart and Tom Farrell of the Blue Goose Sohoans and Johnny Rees and Al Sticker of the Yunker Sports.

A preliminary game between the Augustine Canfield Oils and Rex Billiards of the Friendly House Senior A league is scheduled at 8 p. m.

Satterlee Pinsters Move Into Pin Lead

Ringside Cafe, Mansfield Printers and Mansfield Rugs Trail Restaurant By One Game.

THE Satterlee Restaurant keggers stepped into first place in the Commercial B league at the Meder Recreation alleys last night by virtue of two victories over the Heilman Grocers, but their advantage was far from comfortable.

Satterlee's team, which passed the Ringside Cafe, holds only a one-game lead over its predecessor, the Mansfield Printers and Mansfield Rugs. The Ringside quintet was dropped out of first place by the Yunker Sports, who notched two wins.

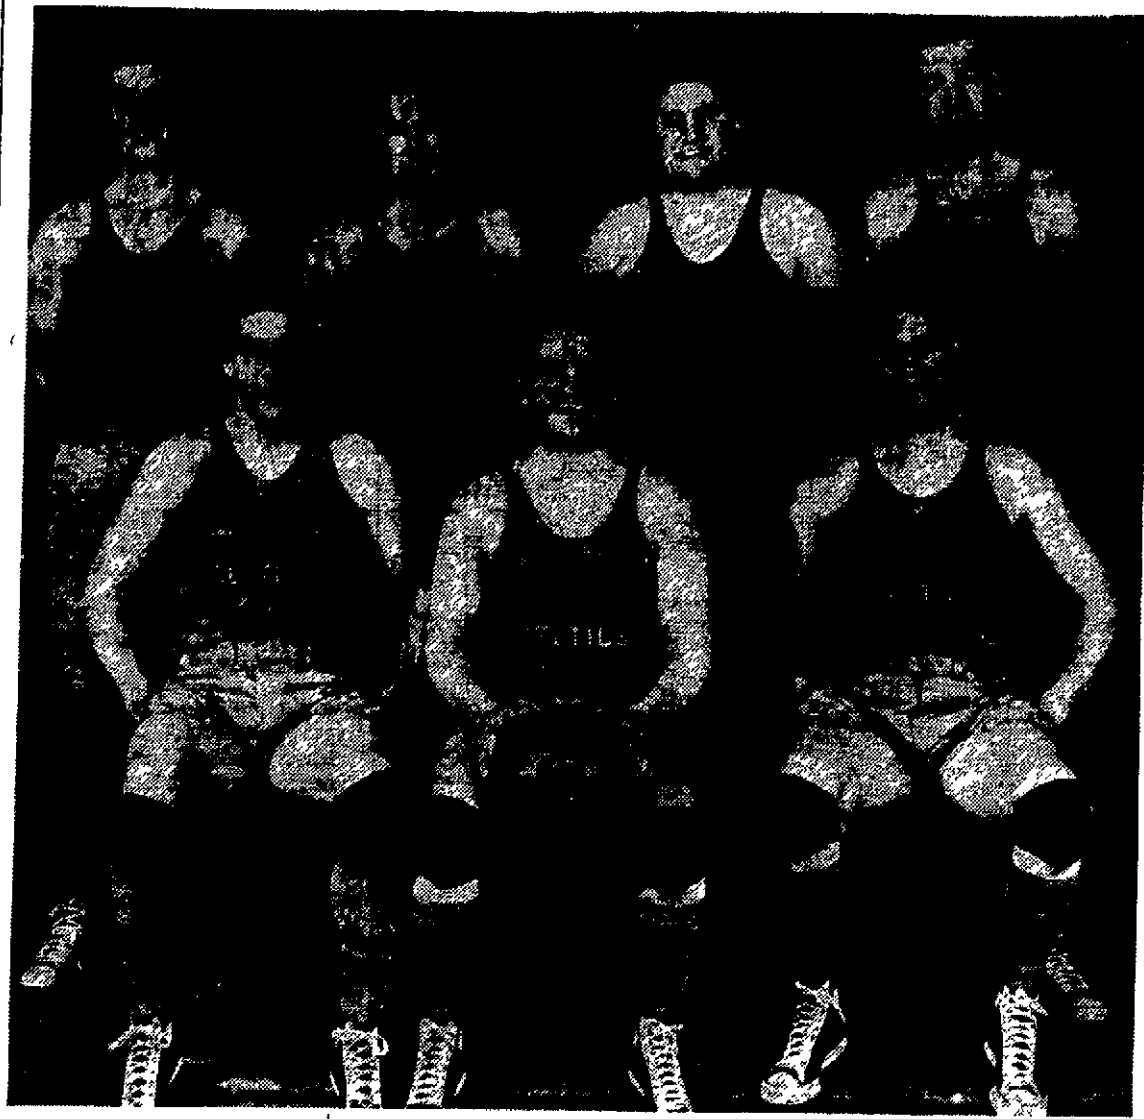

The Mansfield Printers jumped into a three-way tie for the lead by taking two tilts from the Southern Hotel, the first coming by the margin of a pin, and the Rugs swept their series with Ohio Public Service.

The Koehne Sports won scoring laurels with a 2771 total. However, it was only one game from the Foxman Run golfers. The Shelby Creses added two wins at the expense of the Mo-hican Chevrolets in the other match.

Agrees to Mix With Mephisto

Knutsen Signed for Headline Match on Monday's Card.

The Great Mephisto, colorful mystery man of the wrestling pad, and Gil Knutsen, brilliant blond Canadian mat star, have been signed for the feature event of the Quality Club wrestling show in the Armory next Monday night.

Tim Nolan, rotund match-maker of the Quality Club, announced today that he had succeeded in signing Knutsen to meet Mephisto in a two out of three falls match with an hour and a half time limit on that date.

Nolan dangled a possible bout with the world's junior heavyweight champion, Billy Weidner, before the eyes of Knutsen as bait for this match and Knutsen grasped it eagerly. Prior to Nolan's championship offer Knutsen had been indifferent to match with Mephisto after he had gained a hotly disputed victory over the mystery man in Mt. Vernon several days ago.

Urges Change In Goal Posts To Faciliate Place-Kicking

Coaches Recommend That Distance Between Posts Be Widened, Bar Lowered.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Four important changes in the football rules for 1940 were up for approval today by the American Football Coaches' association, meeting in Los Angeles.

These recommendations will go to the rules committee which meets in Palm Springs, Jan. 2. There they will be either rejected or officially written into the rule book.

The recommendations are announced by Lou Little, president of the association, are:

- 1: Widened the distance between the uprights of the goal posts and lower the cross bar to facilitate place-kicking.
- 2: Make the penalty for a forward pass touching an ineligible player behind the line of scrimmage five yards and the loss of a down instead of 15 yards as at present.
- 3: That, although official cleats used the past year have served their purpose in cutting down the number of lacerations to players, they have, nevertheless, proven too cumbersome, and it is suggested that tips of cleats may be cut to three-eighths of an inch, instead of the present half inch.
- 4: That coaching and officiating clinics be conducted at the start of each season, in order to bring about better physical condition of the arbiters as well as a better understanding of all rules.

The widening of the distance between the uprights and the lowering of the cross bar is the most revolutionary of the changes but was pressed by Little in order to put the kick back in football.

Public Opinion Sways Toward Volunteer Club

PASADENA—(AP)—Surprisingly, in face of most of the visiting coaches picking Southern California, Tennessee has moved into an even-money spot for the Rose Bowl game.

Most of the big wagers now being made straight across the board and many who were waiting for longer odds against the Vols now are scurrying to get set at even-money.

The swaying of public opinion toward Tennessee is largely due to its great record of running up 505 points in 23 consecutive victories with only 16 points—none of which have been made this year—against them.

MEDER BOWLING ALLEYS TO BE CLOSED SATURDAY

Tygers Travel To Sandusky

Hoffman Expects Trouble From Blue Streaks In Tonight's Conflict.

OUTSIDE of the Elyria game, Coach Vern Hoffman's Tygers have encountered plenty of trouble in their appearances this season, and tonight is not expected to be an exception.

The Tygers travel to Sandusky tonight to renew their rivalry with Coach Glenn Wainwright's men of the court, and the Mansfield mentor realizes the size of the task confronting his athletes.

The Tygers walloped Elyria, 61 to 17, and Sandusky whipped the same club by a 28 to 17 count. Judging from a score comparison, Mansfield will win.

However, Coach Hoffman is not so certain. "If we play ball right at the start," Hoffman said, "we'll be tough to beat."

It was the Tygers' failure to get going against Canton McKinley that cost them a victory in their last appearance. Mansfield trailed 28 to 10 at the half, but spurred to tie the score at 40-all just before the finish.

Three Quintets Tied for Lead

Farms Throw Race Into Deadlock By Handing Canfields First Defeat.

THERE'S going to be a grand scramble for the championship in the Friendly House Senior Class A basketball league this season, it now appears.

Before last night's games at the settlement, the Augustine Canfield Station quintet held sole possession of first place, but today that club was sharing the top berth with two other clubs—the Rex Billards, defending champions, and Raemelon Farm.

The Farm combine tossed the race into a free-for-all affair by handing the heretofore undefeated Augustine outfit a 34 to 18 beating, while the Billiards were registering a 37 to 22 triumph over the Daley Cafe five. The three clubs sharing the lead have suffered only one setback.

Taper Off For Bowl Contests

Tennessee Holds Secret Drill, Cafego Expected to Be in Shape for Tilt.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — (U.P.) — Both the northern and southern football squads taper off today with light practice for their charity football classic Saturday.

Jimmy Fordham of Georgia worked out at the fullback spot for the southern squad after a knee injury benched Paul Shu Virginia Military Institute star.

NEW ORLEANS — (U.P.) — First string tackle Millard White and right end Ralph Wenzel were expected back in uniform for Tulane today. They had left practice to attend funerals of relatives.

Coach Lowell Dawson stressed punting, protecting the kicker on the offensive and rushing the punter on the defensive as his squads practiced in cold weather.

DALLAS, Tex. — (U.P.) — The Boston College football team worked out at Southern Methodist University today.

The Eagles arrived yesterday for their Cotton bowl game with Clemson and wearing their golden football uniforms rode through the town on fire trucks in near-freezing weather.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — (U.P.) — The Texas Aggies arrive in New Orleans today for their Sugar Bowl game on New Year's Day.

The Aggie squad, left here yesterday and after a brief stop in New Orleans will go to Biloxi, Miss., where they will stay until Monday.

MIAMI, Fla. — (U.P.) — All America back Paul Christman will carry the Orange Bowl hopes of Missouri University against Georgia Tech New Year's Day.

Christman was successful with 48 per cent of his passes during the season but the Tigers' ground attack was twice as potent. Their running plays have been good for 1,736 yards in nine games.

Georgia Tech practiced kicking and passing, indicating a revival Monday of the old but effective Michigan "punt, pass and prayer" technique.

PASADENA, Calif. — (U.P.) — Tennessee's Vols practiced secretly today for their Rose Bowl game with Southern California Monday.

Although Buist Warren worked out at the tailback spot in place of George Cafego, Trainer Mickey O'Brien was confident the Vol star would be in shape for the game.

Coach Howard Jones drilled his Southern California squad on short passing plays.

RED BIRDS SELL BROWNE COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — The contract of Earl Browne, outfielder and first baseman, was sold to the Columbus Red Birds today to the New Orleans club of the Southern Association.

SIGNS WITH TORONTO WOODSFIELD — (U.P.) — "Sad Sam" Jones, who retired from baseball in 1935, said today he planned to leave March 15 for Avon Park, Fla., to act as coach for the Toronto club of the International League.

OUTPOINTS DENNER BOSTON — (U.P.) — Salvatore Barolo, 127, Boston, outpointed Abe Denner, 128, Boston, (109).

The Sandusky offense is built around Bob Fleming this season. The big colored lad is holding down the center post and playing at the pivot on offense.

Geno Bakoni, who has caused Mansfield fans many headaches in both football and basketball, is another mainstay of the Sandusky quintet.

Thomas and Harbrecht, other Sandusky standouts last season, are expected to get into action against Mansfield. They were kept out of the opening games to give grid injuries more time to mend. Harbrecht was injured in the Mansfield game last fall.

Hoffman plans to start his usual lineup consisting of the two Genes, Miller and Rudolph, at the forward line. Russ Beer at center and Bill Harbeck and Don Rose, guards.

A preliminary game between the reserve teams of the two schools is scheduled at 7:15 p. m. The Mansfield squads were slated to leave the high school at 4:30 p. m.

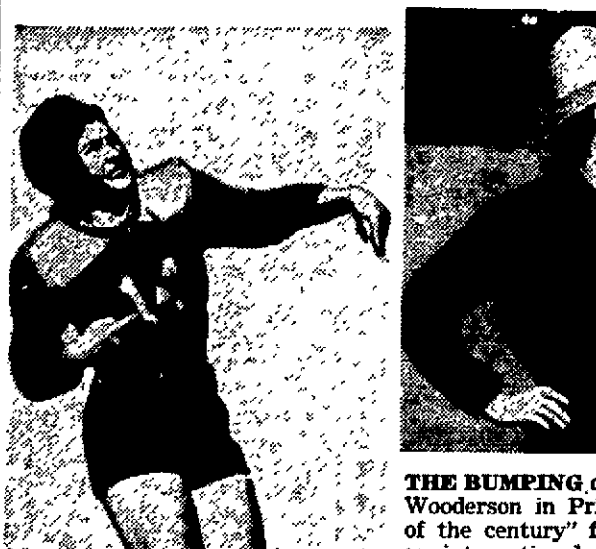

The Cockeyed Side of Sports In '39 College Sked

TONY GALENTO, pugilist and bartender, turned actor, played Romeo to Nancy Carroll's Juliet.

FOOTBALL'S FERDINAND: Strange spring training by Ernie Schwotzer, Boston college.

THE GIRLS MOVED IN ON FOOTBALL: Alice Schumann, coed star at Western State college, Colorado, pegs a southpaw pass.

THE BUMPING OF Britain's Syd Wooderson in Princeton's "mile of the century" flop threatened an international incident.

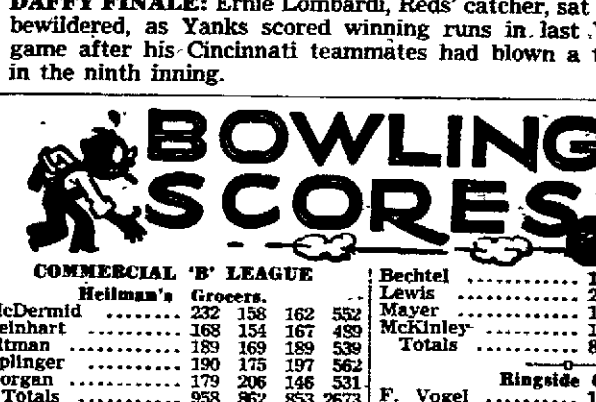

MAGICIAN Jimmy Grippio, boxer Mello Bettina's pilot, "hypnotized" him into believing he could win, "hexed" his opponents.

DRUM MAJORETTE, Elsie Crabtree liked this costume. The dean didn't. Their dispute drew more notice than Nevada U's grid team.

DAFFY FINALE: Ernie Lombardi, Reds' catcher, sat on haunches, bewildered, as Yanks scored winning runs in last World series game after his Cincinnati teammates had blown a two-run lead in the ninth inning.

Galento Seeks Miami Battle

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Manhattan, which seems year after year to become more and more a winter suburb of Miami, Fla., is wondering right now what big prize fight will spice Miami's current "don't go to Europe" season.

"Uncle Mike" Jacobs of New York's 20th Century club is safely cabana-ed on the Roney Plaza's silvery sands at Miami Beach.

But you may be sure that Uncle Mike is more concerned with counting noses than with the commercial correctness of his hoof beats in the crowd stroke.

Jacobs of Jacobs Beach, N. Y., may require another week or 10 days to come to a conclusion as to whether he should toss the great Tony Galento and Madcap Maxie Baer into a Miami ring for the most abandoned pier 6 brawl of the century.

Galento, the barrel-bodied barkeep of Orange, N. J., and his stoic-smoking pilot, Joe (Ussell-the-Muscle) Jacobs, are telephoning Uncle Mike daily and imploring a Miami tilt with Baer. Yussel Jacobs, who managed Schmeling and who is no relative of Promoter Mike, emphasizes that the great Galento never will fight Baer in New York state—nor any other opponent for that matter—because they don't harness with the New York Commission.

OPENS NEW RIVALRY WOOSTER — (U.P.) — Wooster college will open its 1940 football season here Sept. 28 against Manchester college, of North Manchester, Ind. It will be the first meeting of the schools.

SURVEYS FUEL
BUYING IN CITYSecretary of Ohio Foundation
Seeks to Learn Why More
Ohio Coal Isn't Used

The fuel-buying habits of Mansfield were examined yesterday by Harry A. Mettler of Nelsonville, secretary of the Ohio Coal foundation, who conducted a survey in the city to learn why more Ohio-mined coal is not being used.

Mettler questioned nearly 100 Mansfielders about the kind of coal they use in their homes, whether it's Ohio coal, how much they buy in a year, and why they purchase the kind they do.

The information was compiled on printed questionnaires which will be used by the Ohio Coal foundation in determining the demands of the average Ohio consumer, Mettler said.

The foundation's survey has already been made in Lima, Upper Sandusky, Bucyrus, Marion, Canton, and Galion. From Mansfield Mettler went to Millersburg and Akron to make canvasses of coal consumers.

The Ohio foundation is financed and directed by the miners and merchants of the southeastern Ohio coal producing area, Mettler explained. The organization has headquarters at Glouster, in the heart of the Hocking and Sunday Creek valleys, major coal districts in the state.

"Many people are not aware that coal mining is one of the state's leading industries, directly supporting over 100,000 people, and it is vital to the industrial future of the state," Mettler said.

AIM TO PLEASE

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(AP)—The merchants of Iowa City aim to please, it can be seen.

"Rush" week at the University of Iowa found the city's leading hotel jammed to capacity with starchy-eyed prospective sorority pledges.

A block east of the hotel one theater was featuring, "These Glamour Girls." Another offered "Hotel for Women" and a third theater came out with the climax production, "Sorority House."

Jail for Striking
Man With Bottle

Accused of striking Joe Kuelling of Springfield in the face with a bottle last Friday during an altercation in a Springfield tavern, Frank J. Hogg, 26, of 117 1/2 South Franklin avenue, was sentenced to 150 days in the county jail yesterday when he pleaded guilty in municipal court to a charge of assault and battery.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended 100 days on condition that Hogg pay Kuelling's hospital and doctor bills.

Charges against William Shepherd, 23, of 120 North Mulberry street, cited on the same charge, were dismissed on recommendation from City Solicitor Marion D. Ward who said Shepherd was not involved in the fight.

Deputy sheriffs who arrested Hogg said that Kuelling suffered a deep gash over an eye when Hogg hurled a bottle at him.

SWOW

MORE SNOW DUE

[illegible]

Little Change in Temperature Seen in Next 24 Hours.

More snow is due tonight and Saturday, but there won't be much of it, the weatherman said.

He forecast occasional light snow tonight and Saturday with little change in temperature. A trace of snow fell in the city last night and today, but there was not enough to add to the drift.

Clear skies were reported today in most sections of Ohio, but there were snow flurries in Mansfield, Wooster, Bowling Green and Bryan. The state highway patrol said all highways are open to traffic but roads are slippery over most of the state. While zero temperatures were reported in sections of the west and northwest, the mercury in Mansfield hovered around the 20-degree mark, about six degrees below normal. The low today was 20 and the high yesterday 25.

Blizzard, Looters Plague Quake Victims, 50,000 Dead

MORE BODIES FOUND BURIED UNDER DEBRIS

Bitter Cold Adds to Horrors of Turkish Disaster; Help Rushed to Area Stricken.

(By Associated Press)
ANKARA — A raging blizzard, looters and the peril of disease increased a tale of horror today in earthquake-stricken Anatolia. Officials said casualties totalled 50,000 dead, ranking the catastrophe with the greatest of modern times.

The latest figure evidently included exposure victims and the critically injured.

Buried in Ruins.
It was said that "numberless thousands of persons remained buried in the ruins of buildings. Special trains bearing hundreds of doctors with supplies and medicines managed today to reach some of the ravaged areas isolated since the great tremors of Wednesday.

They were unable to reach many localities because of blocked roads and collapsed bridges.

Authorities said more tremors might come in the next ten days. Director Fatih of the Istanbul observatory said that geological disturbances apparently occurred 16 miles below the surface and covered a wide area, so that further movements were likely before the strata settled.

As one single item of the tragedy, they reported finding great numbers of stray children in pitiful condition in the mountainous, icy woods.

Three additional earth shocks last night added to distress in the ravaged area of east central Turkey.

Quake-stricken, many persons promised themselves in the days before ruined mosques to go to Mecca for pilgrimage. Minarets had been toppled on sleeping townsfolk in the first shock.

Other miserable survivors huddled in the fields, where many froze to death.

Bitter cold, ranging to 22 degrees Fahrenheit below zero, hampered efforts to extinguish the fires that burned in nearly every village and town.

FIRM UPHELD

Court Rules Its Bid on Light Plant Meets Specifications.

A New York engineering firm was upheld today by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston in its action to win a contract to repair and remodel the Shelby municipal light plant.

Following a two-hour hearing in common pleas court, Judge Huston ruled that the low bid submitted by the plaintiff firm meets the city's specifications and should be declared the successful bid by the Shelby law director.

The Kennedy-Van Saun Manufacturing and Engineering company of New York filed the action against the city of Shelby after Law Director Theodore Lutz declined to approve the city's contract with the firm because of a technicality in the bid.

The New York firm proposed to do the work for $83,180, submitting the lowest of four bids. It was represented in its action by Atty. John C. O'Donnell of Mansfield.

PROBE REFINERY BLAST
LIMA — (AP) — Officials of the Solar Refining Co. today seek the cause of an explosion and fire which destroyed one of four large oil storage tanks. The blast rocked homes a mile from the plant. Damage was not determined immediately.

ject-water carriers to regulation by the interstate commerce commission, prevent cut-throat competition between rail, truck and water companies and to encourage railroad consolidation.

Other important measures still waiting final action are:
1—Spending and housing bills authorizing expenditures of $3,000,000,000. The spending bill is slated to be dropped with administration pushing the housing bill.
2—Public contracts law, passed by senate and pushed by CIO, which provides "blacklisting" for government contractors who violate it. The CIO also wants violators of the Wagner act "black-listed."

3—Barkley bill to curb pollution in rivers, especially designed to curb pollution in Ohio valley. Passed Senate.

4—Lee bill for huge farm tenant land-buying program, as well as extension of crop insurance to cotton. Passed Senate.

5—Smith anti-alien bill, imposing severe penalties for sedition and subversive efforts in armed forces, and hobbs so-called "detention camp" bill for detention of alien law violators who cannot be deported to native lands.

6—Bill permitting government munitions sales to Latin America. Passed House.

7—Gavagan anti-lynching bill, subject to house action because of the signing of a discharge petition by 218 members.

GIRL, TRAPPED IN FIRE, DIES

Kerosene, Father Used To Start Fire in Stove, Causes Blaze.

BUFFALO, N. Y. — (AP) — James Celotto, 53, started a fire in the living room with kerosene. He spilled a little of the inflammable fluid and it trickled under the door into 12-year-old Mary Celotto's bedroom.

A tongue of flame licked at the puddle of kerosene by the stove, and a moment later Mary's room was afire. Trapped, she died before her father could reach her. Celotto, severely burned, led two other children to safety before the flames spread to their room. Mrs. Jennie Celotto, 40, and two other children escaped unaided.

COMMANDS REDS

Gen. Stern Named By Stalin To Direct Finn Drive, Report.

MOSCOW — (AP) — General Gregory M. Stern has been named by Dictator Josef Stalin as chief of the Leningrad military district and commander of the Russian campaign against Finland, it was reported today.

He was understood to be taking over the duties of General K. A. Meretzkov, who was said to have been dismissed from his command a week ago.

NAME YULE LIGHTING CONTEST WINNERS IN 6 CITY DISTRICTS

Awards in the Christmas lighting contest were announced today by the committee of judges. The city was divided into six districts and $5 was awarded the first prize winner in each district.

A new ruling this year that no one could win twice with the same decorations eliminated some of the winners of former contests. The contest was sponsored by the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. and prizes were given by the Ohio Public Service company. Mrs. Thornton Moore was chairman of the sponsoring committee.

The district winners and the "honorable mentions" were:

District 1: Mrs. Ruth Fowler, 35 Lily street, an arrangement of blue lights; J. P. Arras, 635 Springmill street, honorable mention.

District 2: A. A. Pifer, 384 Wayne street, scene of the nativity; Friendly House, honorable mention.

District 3: Mrs. Trilla Wapner, 177 South Diamond street, lighted trees; Oliver Gremling, 16 East Arch street, honorable mention.

District 4: Kenneth Hurlow, 59 Dawson avenue, lights and silhouetted figures of the Three Wise men and the shepherds; O. C. Stanley, 3 Park drive, honorable mention.

BINGO WON; $1,000 STOLEN

CLEVELAND, O. — (AP) — Miss Mildred Keeper, 30, finally won her first bingo prize. It was a big one—$1,000—but it got away. Two men followed her from the place, threatened her and took the money.

QUINTS TO LIVE WITH DIONNES

Famous Girls, 7 Sisters and Brothers to Reside in One House; Dafoe Quits.

(By United Press)

CALLANDER, Ont. — The Dionne quintuplets, it appeared today, are going to live with the folks—Papa and Mama Dionne and their seven sisters and brothers.

The way was paved for reunion of the famous little girls with their less famous family with the resignation of Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, who brought them into the world more than five years ago, from their board of guardians.

Dr. Dafoe, however, will continue as the quins physician.

A lengthy agreement between Oliva Dionne and the doctor provides for the building of a large house for the entire Dionne family, the building of a school house nearby where the girls and their sisters and brothers may study, and the right of Mr. and Mrs. Dionne to direct the quins' religious and scholastic education, under supervision of the Ontario government.

The agreement also provided for the withdrawal by Dionne of two actions against Dr. Dafoe which now are before the courts. One sought a declaration of monies received by the physician in connection with advertising connected with the girls, and the other was a libel action based on Dr. Dafoe's appearance at a Saints and Sinners club initiation in New York where he was labelled a "doctor of letters."

Present plans call for construction of the "grand mansion," as the quins call it, early next spring. It is expected the family will be together under its roof before next fall.

The quintuplets have not lived at home since they were infants. As wards of the king, they were raised apart and even their parents could visit them only at specified times.

Although the agreement is subject to approval by the Ontario government, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn indicated today at his Yarmouth home that he will accept the doctor's resignation from the board of guardians.

The agreement apparently ended a feud of long standing between Dr. Dafoe and Dionne. Their disagreement extended even to the choice of nurses for the girls, who lived in a specially built home nearby the modest Dionne house.

Newlyweds Lose Furniture In Fire After Explosion

BUCYRUS—Most of the furniture of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Shellhouse, newlyweds, was destroyed by fire last night after the couple had used it less than a month.

The fire in the Shellhouse home, 208 East Lucas street, started when a gallon jug of naphtha exploded in the kitchen.

They had just returned home with the naphtha and set it down on the kitchen floor when the explosion occurred. There was no explanation as to what caused it.

The couple escaped being sprayed with the flaming liquid and rushed from the house to summon aid. City firemen extinguished the blaze.

Damage to house and furniture was estimated at $1,500. The property is owned by D. S. Scheiber.

tion are members or supporters of our organization, we look upon its defeat as a definite UERW victory."

Beal added that his union withdrew from the ballot "to demonstrate that the Westinghouse Employees' association did not have the majority support which it claimed."

"When we have succeeded in organizing a majority of the plant employees into the UERW it is our intention to petition the labor board for certification as the exclusive bargaining agency," he asserted. Beal's organization has been attempting to organize Westinghouse for the past two years.

The Employees' association, organized about two years ago, had claimed a membership of 1,300. It is headed by S. B. Bushman.

Meyer, one of the NLRB examiners in charge of the election, said there was a minimum of friction between the Employees' association and the CIO union.

TOPS RECORDS AS 'BIG CUT-UP'

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill. — (AP) — Dr. A. W. Modert has resigned as chief surgeon at Union Hospital here to enter private practice after performing more than 9,000 operations during his nine years as head of the institution's surgical staff.

He has averaged more than 1,000 operations annually of almost every type at the hospital, an 80-bed institution established in 1916 and owned and operated by nine United Mine Workers of America local unions, whose 5,000 members pay $1.25 a month for hospital service.

RETURNED FROM PEN FOR TRIAL

Former O. S. R. Inmate to Be Arraigned Tomorrow in Slugging of Guard.

Ralph Copeland, 21, former Mansfield reformatory inmate, had been returned here today from Ohio penitentiary for arraignment tomorrow on an indictment for assaulting Charles H. McFadden, an O. S. R. guard, seven weeks ago.

Sheriff E. P. Long and Deputy Glenn Freeman went to Columbus after Copeland yesterday. He was served with a copy of the indictment. If Copeland pleads innocent, his trial will be next week, County Prosecutor G. W. Marriott said.

The grand jury indicted Copeland last week on a charge of assault with intent to kill. He allegedly struck McFadden with a piece of wood in an attack Nov. 11 in the reformatory furniture factory. McFadden lost the sight of his left eye as a result of a blow in the head.

Copeland, colored inmate from Allen county, was transferred from the reformatory to the penitentiary following the assault. He was serving a term for possessing burglary tools. He had previously been in the penitentiary but was brought to the reformatory in July because of his age.

The badge, valued at $75, first was worn by Carl Fronberger, former sheriff and police chief here.

Women's Clubs Urged to Help Finnish Relief

NEW YORK.—(U.P.)—A tribute to the women of Finland has been paid by Lena Madson Phillips, president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs.

Finland, she explained, introduced universal suffrage in 1906. It pioneered in 1926 by raising women to high places when Miss Minna Sillanpaa became deputy minister of social affairs.

Miss Phillips praised Herbert Hoover and the organization of the Finnish Relief Fund, Inc., and declared the work should be particularly applauded by women because of Finland's advancement of their cause.

"The visitor to Finland is struck," she said, "by the intelligence and character of the Finnish women. They are equals of their men, fellow workers, not competitors."

"Particularly in the professions are the Finnish women prominent. More than half of the dentists in Finland are women; women make up a large percentage of the physicians and surgeons; the schools are largely staffed by Finnish women."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1939.

If belated snows serve to revive the Christmas spirit don't try to quell it.

However much they may be belittled, there's no record of a New Year good resolution ever having done any harm.

A rumor is current that American Communists do not like the "Gone With the Wind" film—but those press agents seem to think of everything to popularize a picture.

Richland County's Traffic Toll

RICHLAND COUNTY approaches the year-end with the distressing realization that it has failed to perform its part in what has been a nation-wide attempt to reduce traffic fatalities.

With another two days to go, 28 persons have already been killed in traffic accidents in this county during 1939, as against 23 on this date last year.

Without entering into discussion of causes of this increase in traffic deaths in Richland county, the fact remains that many other sections of the country have been successful, through education, law enforcement and careful driving, in cutting down the traffic toll.

What now needs be considered in Mansfield and Richland county is how next year's record can be bettered.

Much Inter-State Touring

THE STATE of Washington was pleased to learn from the current report of its progress commission that, during 1939, it entertained nearly two million visitors who spent about $90,000,000 while there. Many of the visitors came in response to the inviting advertising campaigns of the commission, the Evergreen Playgrounds Association and transportation lines.

No state ever needs to envy the tourist successes of other states. This is a profitable enterprise which grows with the satisfaction of patrons. A happy vacation in one state not only makes the vacationer eager to return at his earliest opportunity, but makes him plan visits to other states.

Americans in recent years have been developing a new feeling for their own land, admiration for its variety in climate, scenery and production, and respect and good feeling for the other Americans met on such travels. There isn't a state in the Union that doesn't have much to offer visitors—in historic associations, in recreational delights, in interesting native wild life, in rivers or forests or mountains or plains or beaches or quiet valleys or fascinating deserts. There is nothing to deplore in the fact that getting acquainted is a mutually profitable process.

Honor Experiment That Worked

EIGHTY-THREE BOYS in an eastern corrective institution were given Christmas leaves on the honor system. They were allowed to depart for their homes without supervision on the Friday before Christmas and were pledged to return some time Christmas day. They all came back promptly.

An outsider wonders why they were not allowed to stay away one day longer, but doubtless there were reasons. The interesting fact is that no boy tried to run away.

One hopes this demonstration of reliability means that the institution is truly fulfilling its purpose. That is, to help boys who have got into trouble of one sort or another with society to overcome their difficulties and develop honor, self-reliance and moral strength. It may also be hoped that their lives at the institution are active enough and so filled with learning and the acquiring of useful skills that the boys themselves find genuine satisfaction in performing their duty cheerfully and well.

Hungry Children Can't Study

A STATE ATTORNEY GENERAL ruled last fall that a certain city board of education could not use school funds for lunches for needy children. The board, which had been doing that for years, had to stop, but it took the matter to court.

Then the other day a judge ruled that feeding hungry pupils was a legitimate use of educational funds, and the board will resume the lunches when the schools open after Christmas.

Whatever may be said for the legalistic correctness of the attorney general's ruling, it is clear that both common sense and humanity are on the other side. School funds spent on reading, writing and arithmetic instruction would be wasted in the case of children under-nourished and going hungry day after day. It has been proved repeatedly that learning power diminishes with such conditions.

'Pay-as-You-Go' for Armament

A NATIONAL POLL indicates that most Americans would rather pay new defense expenses as we go, instead of adding them to the national debt. This is a wholesome attitude, and might be practical in spite of the heavy relief burden still borne by the federal government and the high cost of new defense plans.

The best hope, along this line, comes from the current business improvement. There is no indication of a slump from the recent high level as we swing into the new year. Gains in employment, production and buying power continue, and there is an encouraging amount of new capital investment, which is rated as the best test of prosperity.

If nothing happens at home or abroad to stop this progress, the present federal tax rates should bring a considerable increase of government income, and a moderate increase in federal taxes could probably turn the trick.

Less Showing of Prejudice

AMERICANS appear to be taking international prejudices more calmly than was being done twenty-five years ago. There's the matter of foreign music and language, for instance. Practically no objection is being made to German music and there's no movement to ban the teaching of German in colleges and high schools, as was the case before and during the World war.

Americans are overwhelmingly anti-Nazi, but not anti-German. What opposition there is to German culture comes most from Americans over thirty years old, and it is strongest in those over fifty. The young people have hardly any prejudice.

It would be well in such matters if the older people would follow the example of young. The best hope of developing civilization in this modern world lies in welcoming culture of all forms, wherever it is found.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Ethan Allen, the former Giant outfielder who went from the Giants to the Cards to the Phils to the Cubs and finally to the Browns, and who gave up playing ball to write a book about baseball and also to produce a motion picture in the interest of the National League, can be seen at the Giant offices these days, revising his book and working to stir up interest in the game of baseball as played in the older circuit.

Allen, a natural athlete, always was on the "manager's" side as an active player. He knew the benefits of proper training, and he always observed those rules.

The first time I ever saw him was at the Polo Grounds one day in a game between the Cards and the Giants. The game had rocked along for six or seven innings in one of those blistering scoreless duels, and Allen finally stepped up to the plate and drove a low, hard smash to deep center for an in-the-early home run.

Ordinarily Bill Terry, the Giant manager, would have been down-cast at such an abrupt turn in the game, but as Allen circled the bases I will swear that a smile lit up his face. I could see him standing in front of the dugout.

THE Cards were wild. They gathered at the plate to congratulate the flying Allen, who beat the throw and scored the tie-breaking run.

But just at that moment Terry ran out and said something to the umpire. That dusty and harassed individual hastily perused a slip of paper and then walked over to the Card bench. "The run doesn't count," he boomed, "and Allen's out."

The Cards were stunned. The Giants were howling like maniacs in their exultation. Here is what had happened: Allen had batted out of turn, and when you bat out of turn, you are automatically out. Terry said later he was a nervous wreck, so afraid was he that somebody would notice that Allen was batting out of turn before he had taken a cut at the ball.

AS FOR the Cards, they gave vent to their displeasure by seizing their bats and banging them in impotent rage against the dugout steps. Uncle Frankie Frisch, who is called and who was at that time the Cardinal manager, could stop them only after they had broken half a dozen bats.

Allen is a friend of long standing with Red Barber, the sports announcer and writer. At a dinner the other night he related with glee of the time he went to Barber's home for a Thanksgiving dinner.

Red, it seems, had been designated by his dad to carve the turkey that day. Carving is quite a ritual in many southern homes, and Red's dad felt that his offspring was old enough to take up those duties.

They gathered hungrily around the table, and the first thing anyone knew Red's fork slipped and the turkey sailed into the lap of one of his Aunts. She had chestnut dressing and gravy from head to foot.

The Allens, by the way, have a little boy whose name is Toby. He was named for the character, a sports writer in Katherine Brush's "Young Man of Manhattan."

Adverse Polls Do Not Disturb FDR

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt is not disturbed by various polls showing this or that preference on the part of the voters. Notably he is not impressed by the apparent objection to the third-term idea on the part of a considerable fraction of the voters. Nor is he bothered by the fact that the particular candidate for the Republican nomination whom he seems to dislike most, Thomas E. Dewey, is showing up better in polls than Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Senator Robert A. Taft, or Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio.

To several recent callers the president has asserted, with apparently the utmost conviction, that it is not important if any poll indicates a majority of the people of the country are against some policy of which he approves. He has asserted that if he went on the air in a fireside chat and pointed out the merits of the policy in question, he could convince the people he was right.

THE president naturally has not gone so far as to say that he could persuade them to accept him for a third term. He is not talking about third term in any such fashion. All he indicates to any one when the subject comes up is an implicit delight in the eagerness of everybody to find out what he is going to do, and a resoluteness not to say anything which would bind him one way or the other.

As to the polls, those close to the president voice their opinions at every opportunity—that "they do not prove a thing."

One man very close to the president, who is admitted to have a shrewd political mind—which eliminates all the so-called Brain Trusters—indulged in quite a dissertation the other night on the subject of polls. Boiled down, it went something like this:

Back in the early part of this country the great national poll was the one conducted by the old New York Herald. For years it was regarded as gospel. It seemed to be infallible. Then came 1916. As every one remembers, that was a very close election, which California finally decided in favor of Woodrow Wilson.

It so happened that the Herald had taken a great many ballots in California. In fact, in the big summing up articles which were reprinted on Sundays, the Herald actually apologized to its readers before mentioning the total vote.

Its votes in the state by state columns were all right, it insisted, but it had taken too many ballots in California, so that when this vote was added to the votes of the other states, it produced an unbalanced result. The trouble was, as California's vote was running two to one for Hughes, this preponderance of California votes weighted the totals unduly.

Then came the election, and California went for Wilson. The Herald poll was never taken again.

NEXT the Literary Digest poll rose to even greater heights than the Herald poll had reached. Its figures were printed in virtually every newspaper in the country week by week as each campaign progressed. Its percentage of accuracy, as demonstrated by the real election figures later, was uncanny, right up to 1936.

But in that year the poll showed that Alfred M. Landon would be elected by a huge majority in the electoral college, and an overwhelming popular majority. Most political writers knew it was lopsided, but such was its prestige that nearly all of them were influenced in their own articles by the Digest figures. This explains why there were so many anchors to windward in the forecasts of that election made by the political reporters. But they didn't suspect how far wrong the Digest would be.

The shock treatment of depressed mental states, including dementia praecox, is widely used. This is the treatment which was brought back by young American doctor from Europe, with the words, "I have seen a miracle."

Vitamin D Used. Dermatology.—In psoriasis, sarsaparilla and vitamin D have been used. Vitamin D has also been used in acne. In pruritus and many improvements have been made in treatment. Horny conditions of the skin have been treated by vitamin A. X-Ray.—Improvement has been made in the examination of the gallbladder, the spinal canal, the brain, the breast, the placenta, the liver and the spleen. Super-voltage rays have shown improvement. The brilliant results of x-ray treatment in cancer of the skin are coming to the surface. Cancer of the prostate, of the uterus and of the bronchi are being treated.

Hints On Etiquette.

When giving a dinner for guests, it is a good plan for the hostess to place some extra silver and napkins on a serving table or other handy place so that she can easily replace a dropped napkin or piece of silver which might be inadvertently used on a course leaving none for the one following.

One-Minute Test Answers.

THE CHALLENGE

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Most important question confronting the world as 1940 approaches is peace. A lot of back-stage whispering on that subject has been going on this week. The whispering existed before President Roosevelt launched his Christmas peace move, but it has reverberated to a sort of sotto crescendo since.

Out of these whispers it is possible to weave together one fairly definite fact:

Certain powerful forces both in Germany and England would not be at all averse to patching up their own row and then encouraging a politico-religious war against Soviet Russia.

This would meet with the very decided approval of Italy. And there are potent people in the U. S. state department also who would welcome such a move. Whether the Myron Taylor mission to Rome, just initiated by Roosevelt, will take this turn remains to be seen—but it may.

For some time now, the state department and the White House have been getting informal suggestions from Germany that the Hitler government would be glad to see Roosevelt step in to arrange a peace. These suggestions always have come so informally that they could not be pinned directly upon Hitler, but most of them could be traced back to the No. 2 Nazi, Herman Goering.

Goering, of course, is a comparative moderate, never wanted war, represents the saner, practical elements in the German army. However, he is still the closest man to Hitler, and it seems doubtful that these peace suggestions would come without Hitler's knowledge and consent.

Russia's Great Mistake.

THREE factors are important in considering the possibility of peace. One is the situation in Russia; second is the situation in Germany; third is the situation in England. Here is a brief summary of all three:

The Situation in Russia dates back to the eve of the attack upon Finland, at which time Foreign Minister Molotov told a high ambassador in the Moscow diplomatic corps that the fracas with Finland would be over in exactly six days. Four more would be necessary, he said, to mop up, making a total of ten days for the whole business.

At that time the foreign diplomats in Moscow believed him. So also did Germany.

But that was nearly two months ago. And today they do not believe him. Furthermore, they do not believe that the much-vaunted Red army is anything more than a paper army.

For the uncensored military dispatches which the U. S. government gets from the Finnish front indicate that the very severe reverses suffered by the Russians have been due, not to the force of the Finnish army (heroic but weak), but to the inefficiency of the Russians themselves.

Stalin's great mistake was to let the world penetrate the myth of the Red army's omnipotence.

Nazis Eye Ukraine.

The Situation in Germany has been completely changed by the Russian reverses. Members of the general staff, who accepted the Russian alliance as an important aid in the conquest of Poland, now admit that they overestimated the strength both of the Polish army and of the Russian.

Hitler's goal, as outlined in "Mein Kampf," always was the Russian Ukraine, and now more and more of the men around him are convinced that he was right.

Therefore, the Goering group now would be willing to have

Chicken Thieves

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ONE of my friends took his children to town to see the Christmas stores. While they all were away somebody visited his henroost and took two dozen or more of his finest chickens. I do not know the name of the thief.

So far as I know there are no chicken thieves among my friends or acquaintances. But I can guess a few things about him, as anyone can who consults the records of our police courts.

He is not an old man; probably he is in his late teens or early twenties. He is fond of sports—hunting, fishing, trapping, perhaps of gambling. He likes something for nothing. He has been doing it most of his life. He did not finish high school, or if he did he was not among the leaders of his class.

This is not the first time he has taken what did not belong to him. He began very young by stealing coins from his father's pockets, or toys from boys he played with. He lied and his parents believed him. He cheated in his school work and prided himself on what he "got away with."

Getting away with something has been rewarded in his home. In fact his parents and grandparents, his teachers and his older friends have placed a premium on dishonesty. Once, long ago, I overheard a father make a remark. His half-grown boy came to him with a wrench which he had found on the running board of the family car.

"Good!" said the man. "I need one like that. They cost $1.50. That dumb cluck at the garage must have left it there when he fixed the car. Well, that's his hard luck! Put it in with the tools."

I was not much surprised to hear, a few years later, of that youth being apprehended for helping himself from the till of the filling station which employed him.

I do not know the names of the fellows who stole my friend's chickens. But I'm pretty sure they never raised or cared for a flock of poultry, or provided food for a family. And I'm sure they didn't learn to read from the old McGuffey readers. They do not know that they are missing something that will make their generation the loser.

"Something for nothing" is not a safe motto to live by, nor a worthy one to teach our children. It must be worse to be father of a chicken thief than to find out, with a sinking heart, that one's finest poultry is missing.

Fear of Communism.

The Situation in Great Britain is highlighted by a, consuming fear of communism. If the war drags on a year or so, most leaders of the Conservative government agree it can only end in communism on both sides.

This was the report which Ambassador Kennedy brought back to the president—and probably he is right.

Therefore, British industrialists and at least three members of the British government (Chamberlain, Simon, and Hoare) lean anxiously toward any peace which would stave off the dread spectre of radical labor rule in England.

Also it is important to recall that in October, 1938, just after Munich, the British tactfully suggested to Hitler that he might satisfy his territorial hunger at the expense of the Russian Ukraine, rather than disturb the peace of Europe over Poland.

So now is quite consistent for the British to fall in with any revival of this idea, especially if the Germans now admit they made a mistake.

It is important to note, however, that by no means all of the British cabinet hold this view. Prime Minister Chamberlain holds it, though even he would not go along on any peace with Germany unless Hitler bowed out. He is adamant on that point. Several other members of the cabinet hold much more vigorous views that the war cannot be terminated while Germany is virtually victorious—and such a peace certainly would leave her so.

The outcome of all this is going to depend a lot on Rome and a lot on the United States. And that's why Roosevelt's appointment of Myron Taylor as special envoy to the Pope can be so important.

Merry-Go-Round.

TO AVOID the appearance of an American envoy appointed solely to the Vatican, Myron Taylor will spend most of his time at Florence, where he has a villa. This will appease both political and political desires.

Taylor has been spending part of each year at his Italian villa for some years. . . . It was Taylor who made industrial-labor history by signing a contract between United States Steel and John L. Lewis whereby the CIO organized Big Steel. Lewis and Taylor have remained warm admirers. . . . Taylor recently underwent a serious operation and for that reason will be slightly delayed in leaving for Rome. . . . Ever since Alf Landon ran for president his young son and daughter, Jack and Nancy, have received scores of toys from admirers throughout the country. The gifts are so numerous that Mrs. Landon is able to furnish all the toys for a Topsy orphanage.

22 COMMITTEES FOR '40 NAMED BY C. OF C. HEAD

Van Derau Appoints More Than 200 Chamber Members, Adds One New Group.

Clarence L. Van Derau, recently re-elected president of the Chamber of Commerce, today announced his selection of 22 standing committees to serve the chamber during 1940.

Only one new committee was added to those on the organization roster this year. The new group is the agriculture committee headed by J. O. Hanley.

More than 200 members will participate in committee affairs. Other special committees will be added later as the need arises, Van Derau said.

The various committees are:

Actress Aids Finnish Fund

Let's Help FINLAND

Helen Hayes, No. 1 dramatic actress of the American stage, posed for the above poster to aid the Finnish Relief Fund drive, which is headed by former president Herbert Hoover.

The drive got under way again today after a let-down over the holiday when Chairman Hoover returned to the national office in New York City after a tour through the midwest in behalf of the Finnish fund. Steps have been taken to set up campaign organizations in all of the states. Dr. Eugene Van Cleef of Ohio State university, has been named chairman of the Ohio organization.

After a lull in Mansfield and vicinity during the past few days, contributions for the fund totaled $31.46 yesterday, boosting the fund to $596.04.

Latest contributors are Frank A. Lieder, R. D. Lucas, Carl Johnston, 157 East First street; R. M. Batson, Lincoln Heights; J. W. Graham, 571 Sloane avenue; W. H. Bowie, 437 Park avenue west; The News-Journal; Mrs. Avery Hand, 37 Sturgis avenue; Billy Leonard, 137 South Main street; Sigma Delta club; Lucas; Earley Barnes, R. D. 6.

Speeder Urges State Trooper To Visit Home

HARTFORD, Ct.—(UP)—A Boston accountant, arrested for speeding on the Merritt Parkway, was so grateful for the courteous treatment afforded him by the state police, he invited the arresting officer to visit him at Boston the next time he was there.

Saul Margolis, the accountant, was fined $10 and costs in New Canaan Town court on the speeding charge. A few days later, State Police Lieut. Willard Bushey, the arresting trooper, got this letter from Margolis:

"I want to thank you for your considerate and courteous treatment. Even though my attempts to talk you out of it were unsuccessful and costly to me, it really was a pleasure to spend the time I did with you.

"If at any time (I hope never) I am again placed in such a position, I would want nothing better than to be arrested by you.

"Should you at any time be in Boston, I would greatly appreciate you getting in touch with me so that we may talk over old times."

TELL BILL GOODBYE + + + + +

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

FABIENNE untied the big apron she had put on over her pants, hung it on a nail and surveyed four glasses of only slightly burned apple butter with pride.

"Hey, wait a minute!" Bill said, getting off the kitchen table where he had been watching Fabienne's culinary achievement. "You don't think you're done, do you?"

"You wouldn't like me to eat it, too, would you? Surely not after that dinner!"

"We've got to take it back to town. I'm going to keep it all for myself and eat it for breakfast every day—thinking about you."

"Oh!" Sometimes Bill said things he ought not to say. And did things he ought not to do. Like having that newspaper picture of her on his highboy. She supposed the Thomasino child had given it to him and he'd pulled it out of his pocket and forgotten about it. But he oughtn't to do things like that, not when he was trying to woo Ellen.

A small frown puckered her brow. She wondered what Ellen was thinking of her at the moment. Bill had practically dismissed Ellen, sending her off for a walk with Nicky, while Fabienne and Bill peeled apples and stirred them while they stewed in cider at the back of the big range. Any other girl would have been jealous and showed it. Fabienne most certainly would not have taken that dismissal.

There was one small comfort, she thought, and that was that Ellen and Nicky always had plenty to talk about. She'd been afraid they'd find nothing in common and she wanted her friends to like each other.

It would not be hard to like Ellen, but Nicky was a different matter altogether. Fortunately, Nicky had been a different Nicky these last few weeks, since the wedding, from the old Nicky. Not only was he practically on the water wagon, but he was really settling down to work, bringing them enthusiastic accounts of what he was doing. "I'm only a florid office boy now, but I'm getting the hang of things. Who'd think Nicky'd ever have an ambition to carry on the glorious traditions of the Bartlett name?"

Fabienne said truthfully that she was not one of them. Ellen, who was not at all surprised by Nicky's settling down, said nothing.

Walking beside him on the frozen road at the moment, she was saying, "Do you think it will last, Nicky? Do you think you'll keep on liking work when the novelty has worn off?"

"If I don't, I'll come right back to you for fresh impetus. You're the first person who ever made me feel ashamed of wasting my life."

"I never meant you to feel that way, Nicky. The only reason that I talked the way I did was because I think that people who are born with a responsibility to meet get the most out of life when they do meet it. So many people look up to a man in your position. They depend on you to carry on because when you do, they can be sure of their bread and butter and a kind of security they have always known. I mean that your father and your grandfather have built up something upon which hundreds of people depend for their livelihood. It's more than just a company. It's the Bartlett company. Understand?"

He grinned at her. "You make everything clear, Ellen. But I have a confession to make. I didn't do it for any of those reasons. I did it because I—well, Fab's been after me for a long time to go to work and now you—"

There was no cloud over the sun, but a shadow fell across Ellen's face. She said, "We'd better walk a little faster, Nicky. Fab will think we've been lost."

Fabienne saw them coming over the hill. Bill had gone into the "lab" and came back with a cake of wax. "I told you you needed a man around the house, ma'am," he said, melting it to top the bottles.

"Sometimes I think you're right," she said somberly. "When I have to chop wood and bring in water and milk cows, I do find it leaves me little time for my beauty treatments."

Bill poured the wax over the top of a jar. "You know, Fab, you wouldn't look as funny doing those things as you think you would. You're made up of a lot of qualities."

Nicky and Ellen came into the kitchen stamping snow from their boots, looking rose-cheeked and radiant.

"It's getting a lot colder," Nicky told them. "And the sky looks pretty gray over in the east."

"We'd better start back early," Bill said. "This is no place to get caught in a snowstorm. Channing and I came up here one week-end last winter to do a little work. He's interested in amateur radio and went over to see Willis, a guy who has a little ham outfit in Danbury. He couldn't get back and I couldn't get out until the middle of the week. The snow piles up fast in these hills. Had to leave the car here until spring."

"How did you get out?" one of them asked.

"Caught a hitch on the state road."

"It was so nice when we left New York, I'd almost forgotten it's still winter," Ellen said when they were on the road home.

"There's plenty of winter ahead. You notice it more up here where the last snow doesn't melt before more is on top of it."

"Do we take this turn or the one to the left," Bill asked Fabienne at a cross-roads.

"This is the right one," she told him.

"How did you figure that out?" Nicky wanted to know. It was dark in the back seat of the sedan and the overhead light was out of commission.

By MARIE BLIZARD (Copyright, 1939.)

"I never forget a road once I've traveled over it."

"Bet you won't recognize this one the next time. In the summer, when the trees are out and the fields white with daisies, it doesn't look like the same place. That's one of the great charms of New England," Bill said.

But Fabienne was to travel over that road long before the daisies whitened the fields.

Nicky and Bill said their good-nights to the sleepy girls at the door of the apartment.

In the living room, Ellen and Fabienne sprawled in two easy chairs facing each other, talking of the day.

"It was grand," Fabienne said, yawning. "It reminds me of the sort of thing we do in Maryland. Nicky and I have often gone off on horseback to a shooting lodge in the hills and cooked our lunch over a wood fire."

Ellen could picture the scene: Fabienne, radiant, dashing in her riding clothes, going out in the clear morning, coming back facing a sunset with Nicky, laughing, easy happy, sharing things that were familiar to both. She'd never been on a horse in her life.

"When we were in high school, Bill and I used to have summer picnics. I remember one day we went fishing and cooked the fish in a frying pan we bought from a man on the road. We roasted corn and potatoes. I never tasted anything so good."

PENNEY'S

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

IT LOOKS as though little ol' Dan Cupid came right along with Santa Claus when he was distributing presents this Christmas—there are that many new engagement rings about town. . . . Alice Rinehart received a diamond from Robert Walker of Crestline. . . . Ted Frisbee presented Betty Koogle with a ring, while Peg Steward received one from Wilbur Shafer.

But that's not all the news Dan Cupid is broadcasting these days—not by any manner of means. . . . Kay Johnson is the proud possessor of an engagement ring from Neil Case, while Dorothy Stephenson is wearing one from Walter Rose. . . . Ed Jacobs sent Corrine Miller a diamond all the way from California, and Bill Hallem presented Mary Ruth Carter with a lovely ring. . . . Eileen Harper is wearing a diamond ring too—a gift from Clifford Johnson.

There are lots of visitors in town this holiday week, and it's nice to see them and renew their acquaintances while they're here. . . . Louise Garber is here from Chicago, Ill., visiting with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Garber. . . . Guests at the P. J. Kelley home have been their daughter, Jane, who's a student at Marygrove college in Detroit, Mich., their sons, Robert and John, of Boston and Springfield, Mass., and Rachael D'Auray of Woonsocket, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Felton motored to Washington, D. C., for the holiday season to visit with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Carr, Jr.—You'll probably remember Mrs. Carr better as Edwina Felton, a former resident of this city.

ALTHOUGH this is only his first year as a student at Ohio university in Athens, William Smart is finding himself more than busy with a heavy schedule of studies and a number of outside activities—he's a pledge of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity with all sorts of duties to perform for active members, and then too, he's a member of the freshman swimming team—which entails a great deal of practice. . . . Bill is spending the holiday recess with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Smart.

The Stewart Knarrs have all kinds of interesting stories to tell about their life at the University of Chicago settlement house—they're here now visiting with relatives and friends. . . . Mrs. Knarr (she was formerly Marge Fisher) says that Dr. Alice Masaryk (daughter of the first president of ill-fated Czechoslovakia) lives at the settlement and has much to tell about her country's struggle for a new national identity—and Marge also says that, strange as it may seem, Dr. Masaryk looks so much like our town's Florence MacDonald that it's really hard to tell them apart. . . . While attending a benefit tea for a settlement project for Negroes, Mrs. Knarr met Mrs. Joe Louis, hostess of the day, who was very charming and literally "dripping" with orchids and diamonds—Mrs. Louis, who is quite a petite gal—wearing only a size 12 or 14 dress—is a real social leader among her people, and she and her husband drive a black-long car, which has flashy lighted blue glass hubcaps. The Knarrs' daughter, Joan, is here with them for the holidays too.

MR. AND MRS. WIN PARTELO are in town—spending the holidays with Win's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Partello. Mrs. Win, who's been touring the South with a stage review, said that the Sunday after the Friday premier of "Gone With the Wind" in Atlanta, crowds were still lined for blocks to get tickets.

Mrs. Robert Glassner (or do you remember her better as Jean Gorman?) is leaving with her young son, Tommy, tomorrow morning for her home in Milwaukee, Wis. . . . They've been visiting here with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gorman and Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Barnes—Young Tommy's grandparents and great-grandparents.

ABOUT TOWN: It's fun to go down town these days because you meet so many former Mansfielders, who've returned home for the holidays. All in all, it's a pretty good time. I saw Rev. and Mrs. Willard Hackenberg of Detroit, Mich. (she was Mildred Frankenberg, you recall). . . . Dana Jency, our famous model from New York City. . . . Robert Bovard, who came down for a vacation from Grand Rapids, Mich. . . . Bill Daugherty, now of Auburn, N. Y. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Gene Sweetman (she was Helen Webster) whose home is in Dayton. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Charles Campbell (you probably remember her better as Mary Phelps) who came from their new home in London, Ontario, Canada. . . . and Carl Weller, who works in Morgantown, W. Va., now.

Mrs. Bolley Named to Post for 23rd Time

Mrs. William Bolley entered her 23rd year as president of the Women's Missionary society of St. Paul Lutheran church yesterday following the election of officers Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Arrilla Wapner, South Diamond street. Mrs. Philip Wapner was associate hostess.

Mrs. Henry Beilstein was named vice-president. Other officers are Mrs. W. B. Linn, recording secretary; Mrs. Leo Seybold, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. Michael Loesch, statistical secretary; Mrs. Lee Stone, treasurer, and Mrs. Herman L. Gilbert, pianist. Mrs. Gilbert will entertain Jan. 31.

GET APPLICATIONS.

Two applications were received by the Pochontas lodge last night when the members met with Mrs. Martha Reichert in the Eagle hall. The next meeting was set for Jan. 11 after which the members enjoyed a social hour.

Mrs. J. T. Creighton and children, Waterloo, Iowa, are the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Neff, 467 Parkview street.

21 ATTEND.

There were 17 members and four guests of Circle Two of the Park Avenue Baptist church present for a meeting at the home of Mrs. Willard Dize, 334 South Main street, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Charles Swisher was in charge of the devotion and business session, and luncheon was served during the social hour. Mrs. Harold Neese has invited the group to her home, 142 Parkwood boulevard, for the next meeting, Jan. 25, at 2 p. m.

Olivesburg

CLASS MEETS

Members of the Pollock Sunday school class were entertained at the home of the Misses Lona and Abigail Swineford.

Appointments suggestive of the holiday season were used as decorations throughout the home. Mrs. Walter Kirkwood had charge of the business session and devotionals. Miss Beula Kirkwood and Miss Lona Swineford gave Christmas readings. R. R. Houston led in the singing of Christmas carols.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, T. P. Crabbe; vice president, L. C. Henry; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Charles Walker.

BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Wolfe entertained their children and families with a turkey dinner Sunday.

Miss Bernice Louise Henry, who attends Miami university is the guest of her parents during the holiday vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Blust and children spent Christmas day with E. F. Blust and family near Lucas.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Nelson and daughters Wilma and Thelma of Dayton were guests of relatives over the week-end.

Little Care Regularly For Nails

BY MME. QUI VIVE

Women have become extra fastidious about the appearance of their finger nails. The lobster-tinted polish is worn by the lady of fashion and flaunted by the humblest toiler among us. But concerning the well being of the feminine talons we think not at all. If they crack and break, we grind our teeth and rage. But we don't do anything about it.

It is an advantage to have been born with nails that are formed according to beauty hoyle. The little shells should not be flat, but slightly arched from the flesh. The shape should be a pleasing oval. At the base a well-defined crescent should be present; that is the new substance that has emerged from the matrix, which rests beneath the flesh at the nail root.

The circulation of the blood determines the color of the nail. The nail tissue is colorless, composed of the same elements as the skin and hair. If the circulation is brisk, claws are rosy-red; if sluggish, they are pale. During a chill the nails appear blue. A healthy young woman who has fresh air and exercise, eats nourishing groceries and gets her nine hours of sleep every night will have finger sheaths that are satin smooth and of a deep pink color.

Ladies of leisure who don't have to spend time in the kitchen or whisk the dusting cloth around can keep the surfaces of the nails in first class condition. Dust and grime puts on the dull finish. Contact with strong washing agents remove the mirror-like glow. The housewife who wears cotton gloves when she dusts or does other heavy work—polishing the furniture takes a terrible toll of nail beauty—and who uses rubber gloves when she wipes up the bath room floor will be taking out an insurance against fingernail griefs.

The undernourished individual has nails that are thin, bend easily; the hard worker has thick ones, nature taking protective measures against injuries. Thick nails look clumsy, break easily, often show ridges. Cutting with the scissors will thicken them. The file should be used instead; first a metal file, then the emery board.

There are three means of building nice nails out of weak-looking ones—lubricating with a cuticle cream, frictioning to stimulate circulation, drinking milk to supply calcium.

If the cuticle cream jar has gone dry, dip the finger tips in hot olive oil, massage each nail briskly. Work the oil into the cuticle, which should be kept free of the nail fabric so that hangnails won't form. Use an orange wood stick for the purpose; beforehand soften the flesh by soaking the hands in warm soap suds. A little care now and then will do a world of good.

MANY WAYS TO SLIP
Grand slams are ticklish propositions. There are many ways to lose a trick in the play that even the most air-tight appearing contracts frequently fail. For that reason many fine players have an almost unbreakable rule against bidding more than a small slam. When they do violate that rule,

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)
They always feel that they are taking a chance.

South bid 1-Spade here and, after hearing his partner's 3-Spades, visualized the likelihood of a grand slam. Since the pair were using the Culbertson 4-5 No Trump convention, South now bid 4-No Trumps to show two aces and the king of a bid suit. When North responded with 5-No. Trumps, South knew the side had all the aces and consequently bid 7-Spades.

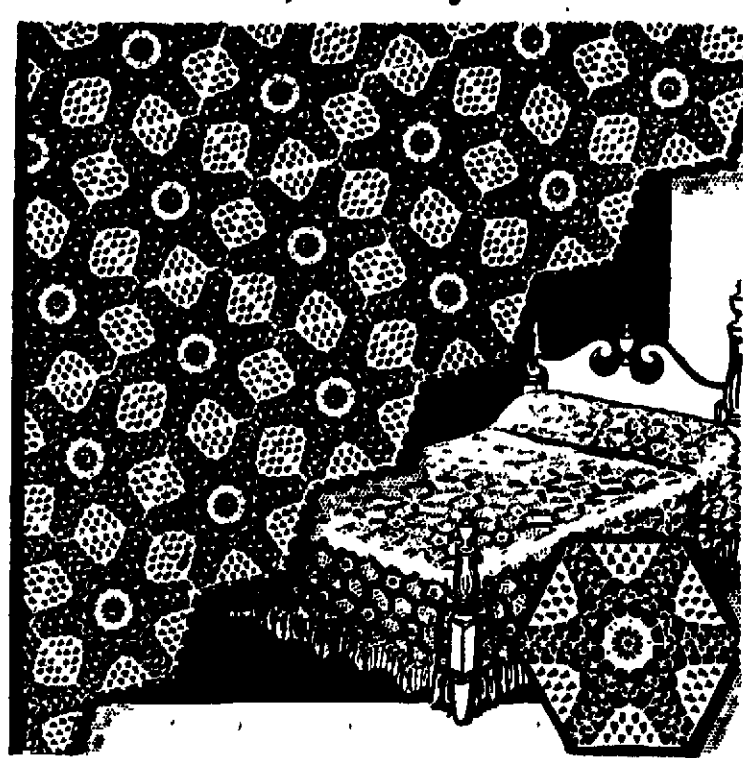

Though the side held all of the aces, three of the kings, all the trumps except the 9 and an extra queen and jack in side suits, the contract was impossible because both the club queen and the heart king were placed unfavorably.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, December 30.
A very interesting and intriguing day is read from the lunar transits. The strong point is in dealing with employers, superiors or those in high places, whose support and preferment may be needed for desired promotion, honors or security of position.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of progress and promotion, with tokens of confidence, preferment and esteem to be won from those in high places through the velvet approach rather than by obvious and strenuous pressure. Use discretion and finesse when seeking favors.

A child born on this day may be talented, ambitious, astute and versatile, as well as diplomatic and subtle. It should attain good position in life.

Tomorrow's Problem.

One thing I meant to tell her at once, so that she might have time to "pump" beforehand. Before she had a chance to talk of anything else I would tell her that I expected Philip Veritzen at ten-thirty. I would lead her to believe that he was coming in connection with my play, and that he had said not to tell her he was coming so that he could "surprise" her. I would ask her not to repeat this to him, giving her the impression that she was protecting me, and in that way I would not have to betray to Olin's mother the story of her daughter's stealthy nocturnal telephone message to Philip Veritzen, and of her appointment with him.

When I entered at the queen's "Come in," and saw her looking at me intently, yet with an odd, shy hesitancy in her manner, I felt upon me the conviction that Olga was as tremendously interested in our coming talk as I was.

"It is so good of you, Madge, to come to me," she said in greeting. "I should have come to you, but I really was not up to dressing so early."

"Do not speak of it," I said. Then I purposely hesitated, as if confused. "Tell me," I said, "do you like surprise visits from masculine friends or acquaintances?"

Her head went up and the muscles of her body tightened. "Indeed I do not," she said, "nor from women either unless they are my relatives or very dear friends who, I am sure, will not criticize me. I suppose I am difficult, but I like to be perfectly groomed before I receive visitors."

She paused and looked at me intently. "I have learned that you never say anything without a reason," she said. "May I ask why you put that question to me?"

"Because," I said, "Mr. Veritzen is to come here today at half after ten to talk over the play. That is," I amended with a swift, panicky recollection that I had told Philip Veritzen I was too terribly fatigued to have a rehearsal, "he thinks he is going to talk over the play. In reality, I am going to turn him over to Mary or to Olin, for I am too tired even to think of the play today. I am going to stay in bed most of the day to be rested for the rehearsal tomorrow. And in the course of the conversation it was mentioned that he was going to surprise you with a call."

THEATERS

IN the past year M-G-M has turned down a million dollars worth of tie-ups for the Judge Hardy pictures, such as the comic strips, serialization, and radio programs. . . . Vera Zorina will be teamed with Richard Greene in "I Was An Adventuress," and Director Ratoff will try hard to get her illusive charm into celluloid, something that hasn't been done so far in her two films. . . . Dopey, of "Snow White" fame, will have a successor in the hearts of movie goers when "Gulliver's Travels" is more widely exhibited. He is Gabby, a cheeky little fellow with the larynx of a lion and the heart of a rabbit. Chances are his popularity will equal that of another newcomer—Vivien Leigh—once folks get to know him. . . .

Douglas and Blondell.

For the third time in several months, Melvyn Douglas and Joan Blondell are teamed in a romantic comedy. This time it is "The Amazing Mr. Williams" in which Joan is seen as a secretary to the mayor and Douglas as a young lawyer who has left his profession in order to do detective work on the police force. Earlier this year they were seen together in "There's Always A Woman" and "Good Girls Go To Paris." The new picture will be shown for two days, Saturday and Sunday. The New Years Eve matinee will usher in "Judge Hardy and Son" at midnight, Sunday. Today's show is "Laugh It Off," a musical comedy, which replaces "Four Wives."

Stage Show.

Tomorrow there will be both pictures and a stage show at the Madison, scheduled for one day only, and with a new stage show and picture on Sunday. Heading the bill tomorrow is "George Whiteman's Follies." In the stage show are six acts of variety entertainment. There will be the Buddy Car duo, roller skating; Bonger and Andriette, singing act; Jans Lytton revue; Alexander, The Great, and company, a magic show; Burton and Kaye, a comedy team; and the Happy Harrisons, a comedy act with a trained mule. On the screen will be "The Cisco Kid and The Lady."

Son of Princeton.

Dick Foran, one of Princeton's sons in Hollywood, plays a rookie cop on the New York police force in "Inside Information." Foran had a job with the Pennsylvania railroad company just before Hollywood claimed him. June Lang and Harry Carey appear with him in his current picture.

Two New Tunes.

Fred Scott, one of the singing cowboys, brings two new tunes to the musical screen in "Code of the Fearless." They are "Here's Romance" and "Cactus Pete." The action revolves around Scott's efforts to rid the Western country of a band of cut-throats and robbers. The second film at the Majestic is "Cafe Society," a smart and sophisticated romantic comedy with Fred MacMurray and Madeline Carroll.

Mr. Autry in Washington.

Another innocent goes to Washington to buck the political merry-go-round hoping to get through much needed legislation despite the red tape that is certain to kill it, in "Rovin' Tumbleweeds." Gene Autry is the congressman and like Mr. Smith in Washington, he realizes the need of attracting attention to himself. Instead of Mr. Smith's filibuster, Autry takes part in a rodeo. There's a touch of Grapes of Wrath in the story, too, for it concerns the troubles of roving campers in California. It's shown at the Ritz.

Bad Lands.

Also shown is "Bad Lands," a stiff, stark tale of the West.
